

Here are some useful websites from Hepp (Higher Education Progression Partnership) to help you start thinking about university as an option for learning.

Hepp Taster Sessions

<https://www.hepp.ac.uk/who-are-you/tasters/> - Hepp are very aware that in the current circumstances created by the Covid-19 pandemic, there are a lot of students learning in a home environment and many parents and guardians helping them with this. In order to help at this time they have collected a sample of their most appropriate resources which do not require Hepp/teacher delivery here. It is their hope that these will be used in the coming days and weeks to enable family learning and foster conversations about higher education in the home. Although the resources below are primarily geared towards Y11 and beyond, there is no reason why they can't be shared with young people in the home. These resources are completely free to use and require no registration.

Hepp Students/Parents Sessions

<https://www.hepp.ac.uk/who-are-you/students-parents/> - Parents are the biggest influences on young people's choices in relation to what they do after the age of 18. You may be worried about them moving away or the student finance system. You or your child may have a disability and you're not sure whether higher education is best for them. Do not worry! Hepp are here to help provide the information you need to help you/your child make the right choice. They specialise in helping people, including parents, find out about higher education. That doesn't have to mean university. It could be a college course or an apprenticeship. On this page there are lots of resources that are geared towards both students and parents. These resources are Hepp produced, as well as others from Sheffield Hallam University and the University of Sheffield.

Hepp's Partner Provision

<https://www.hepp.ac.uk/partner-provision/> - Funded by Sheffield Hallam University and the University of Sheffield, Hepp brings together all those with an interest in promoting higher level education and skills to young people and adults across the Sheffield City Region. The University of Sheffield and Sheffield Hallam University also have their own outreach departments who may be able to offer alternative and additional assistance to that of Hepp, especially where post-16 students are concerned. On this page you can see a range of provision available to you.

Hepp's Wider Links

<https://www.hepp.ac.uk/partner-provision/our-wider-links/> - Hepp's mission is to make things easier for learners and potential learners in our region to find out everything they need to know in order to make informed choices about their future. In order to offer a single point of contact for the region, they work closely with lots of other fantastic organisations. It is vital that we all work together to improve the life chances of people living in our region. The providers on this page share these principles.
